I'm waiting for that special person. Has he? I have. I'm dying to! I bet they are. Should we? They do or not! They do! Does he? I bet she does. If only. Will Mum find out? SOB! Everybody else is! I'd like to! Can they tell I don't? Please don't ask. Will I ever? I don't want to. We do.
EVERY year in the UK several thousand young women aged under 18 become pregnant, but most young people are NOT having sex.

The average age when people first have sex is 16, but you're not unusual if you wait until you're older – many people do!

FOR young people there can be a lot of pressure to have a girlfriend or boyfriend. It can be hard if all your mates are going out with someone and you aren't, but it doesn't mean there's anything wrong with you. People start having boy/girlfriends at different ages.

IT should be your choice to have sex. It's an important decision, so don't do it before you're ready.

NEVER feel you have to have sex because someone is pressuring you to...

SOME people are attracted to people of the opposite sex, some to the same sex and some to both. Most people will grow up to be heterosexual (fancy someone of the opposite sex), but this doesn't mean that they are only attracted to the opposite sex all their lives.

OH, you'll grow out of it! OH yeah?

WHAT'S right for YOU is what's important. Sex before you're ready or with the wrong person can leave you feeling bad.

If you have any doubts or you think you'll regret it, why not wait?

If you DO decide to start having sex, you need to sort out contraception first.
WHAT about CONTRACEPTION?

Contraception stops the man's sperm from joining with the woman's egg to make a baby.

HOW OLD DO I HAVE TO BE?
Any age. It doesn't matter how old you are or whether you are male or female. Many services run sessions for young people.

DON'T I NEED MY PARENTS' PERMISSION?
No, not to see a doctor or nurse, but it can be helpful to talk about things with your parents. Hiding the fact you're having sex from your parents can be very stressful, and they probably won't react as badly as you think. Talking to them or another adult that you trust may make life a lot easier. They may also be able to help you!

WON'T A DOCTOR OR NURSE TELL MY PARENTS I'M HAVING SEX IF I'M UNDER 16?
No. Even if you are under 16 doctors still have to keep anything you tell them private.

SO EVERYTHING IS COMPLETELY CONFIDENTIAL?
All services are CONFIDENTIAL – this means they won't tell anyone else about it. However, they may need to involve other services if they believe you, or another person, to be at significant risk of harm (such as physical or sexual abuse). They will discuss this with you.

WILL I HAVE TO SEE A DOCTOR?
Not always – nurses can advise you and often give you contraception.

Let the staff know if you would prefer to be seen by a doctor or nurse of the same sex as you.

CAN A DOCTOR OR NURSE REFUSE TO GIVE ME CONTRACEPTION IF I'M UNDER 16?
They can, but this is unlikely. The fact that you have asked for contraception shows that you have made a mature decision.

Doctors do have to follow guidelines if you are under 16 and they may ask you to talk to your parents about this.

If a doctor does refuse to give you contraception you can ask why or try another doctor, contraception clinic or young people's clinic.

CONTRACEPTION NEEDS TO BE USED CAREFULLY.
If you do not use a contraceptive method carefully then the risk of pregnancy will be much higher.

If you don't want to be a parent you must use contraception.

WHEN CAN I get CONTRACEPTION?

Sexual Health Clinic

You can get information and confidential help from a doctor or nurse, contraception clinic, pharmacist or sexual health clinic even if you're under 16, so there's no need to take any risks.

Avoid people and situations that might make you want to smoke. Friends may try to tempt you back so they feel better.

WHAT about CONTRACEPTION? Where can I get CONTRACEPTION?

Contraception stops the man's sperm from joining with the woman's egg to make a baby.

Condoms can be used on their own. They do not need to be used with spermicide.

Put on a condom as soon as the penis is fully erect and before it touches a partner's genitals. If it won't go to the base then it's probably on inside out. If so, start again with a new condom as sperm could now be on the first one.

Condoms should be wrapped up and put in a bin, not down the toilet.

As soon as the man has come, and before the penis has had time to go soft, hold the condom firmly in place while withdrawing. Do this slowly and carefully so no semen is spilt.

If you have sex again, use a new condom.

Most problems with condoms happen because people make mistakes when using them.

Put a condom on before sex. Find the teat or closed end and gently squeeze it to get rid of air. This will also help you to roll it on the right way round.

Still holding the end, roll the condom all the way down the penis.

Water-based lubricants (like KY) are ok with any type of condom.

Never use massage oil, lipstick, or other oil-based products with a latex condom – they will damage it. Water-based lubricants (like KY) are ok with any type of condom.

Perhaps you're worried they'll think it's a sign that you've slept around – or that you think they've slept around! Or they're...

...infected?

...a drug-user?

CONDOMS help protect against BOTH pregnancy and STIs. Condoms can help keep both you and your partner safe and allow you to relax and enjoy sex.

IT can be embarrassing to suggest using condoms – particularly if you aren't sure how your partner feels about this or you haven't talked about it before.

Find the teat or closed end and gently squeeze it to get rid of air. This will also help you to roll it on the right way round.

Now? NOW? NOW? NOW? too late!

But I thought you were on the pill!

Why didn’t you ask?!

Why didn’t you say?!

When is the right time to talk about using contraception?

When is the right time to talk about using contraception?
SEX is exciting and it is very easy to get carried away, particularly when combined with alcohol or drugs.

"My girlfriend is six months pregnant. We'd been using condoms, but when you've drunk a bit, you just forget, don't you?"

IF you have had sex without using contraception, or think your method might have failed, there are three types of emergency contraception you can use.

- The emergency pill, Levonelle, can be taken up to three days (72 hours) after sex. It is more effective the earlier it is taken after sex. It is available with a prescription, or to buy from a pharmacy if you are 16 or over.

- The emergency contraceptive pill, ellaOne, can be taken up to five days (120 hours) after sex. It is only available with a prescription.

- An emergency IUD can be fitted up to five days after sex, or up to five days after the earliest time you could have released an egg (ovulation).

Emergency contraception can usually prevent pregnancy.

YOU can get emergency contraception free from:
- a general practice
- a contraception clinic
- a young people’s clinic or Brook clinic
- some GUM clinics
- some pharmacies
- sexual health clinics
- walk-in centres (England only)
- minor injuries units (England only)
- some hospital accident and emergency departments (phone first).

Pregnancy is much harder to hide than a packet of pills or condoms. Your parents may be relieved to know that you're sensible enough to use contraception.

"Contraception spoils the romantic mood."

Some boys may have the best of intentions, but having a baby can put a huge strain on a relationship.

"Condoms take all the pleasure away."

Today's condoms are very sensitive and there are lots of different types to try.

It can take a while to feel confident about using condoms. So practise using them.

"My boyfriend says he’ll stick by me if I get pregnant."

SEX is exciting and it is very easy to get carried away, particularly when combined with alcohol or drugs.

"My parents might find out I’m using contraception."

Being a parent is something to think long and hard about. You can have a baby in your 20s, 30s or 40s, but you can't be a teenager again.

"A baby will be someone to love."

"I JUST couldn't ask Gary to use a condom. I was so thrilled that I'd got off with him after fancying him for ages. But then my period was late and I was just praying that I'd get it. In the end it was OK, but I'm not putting myself through that again."
Daniella, 16

"I THOUGHT I couldn't be pregnant. I'd only had sex once and my periods had always been a bit irregular anyway. I thought if I ignored it everything would be alright. I didn't tell anyone I was pregnant until I was almost six months, by which time it was too late for an abortion. Now I'm a mum."
Rachel, 16

IF your period is late then it's important to do a pregnancy test as soon as possible. You can have a free test done at:
- a contraception clinic
- a young people's clinic or Brook clinic
- a sexual health or GUM (genitourinary medicine) clinic
- some general practices.
A pharmacist will do a test but may charge you for it.
Or you can buy a kit to use yourself.

IF you are pregnant then it's very important that you get medical advice as quickly as possible, whether you want to have the baby or talk about having an abortion or the baby adopted. It can be very difficult to cope with an unplanned pregnancy on your own, so do talk to someone.

This booklet can only give general information about contraception. If you are unsure about anything, ask your doctor, nurse or pharmacist.
